Manager Support

Creating a safe, productive and effective work environment with engaged and enthusiastic employees is a common goal for supervisors and managers. Managing and supervising people can be a rewarding and, at times, an overwhelming task. Events outside the workplace, such as problems in a marriage, family issues or other challenges at home can become a distraction for employees and may impact their overall performance. In addition, certain events in the workplace could have a significant impact on a team, such as an organizational restructure or other challenging situations.

Your Employee Assistance Program (EAP) provides supervisors and managers access to Manager Support Consultants who are available any time, day or night, and can provide confidential consultations, guidance and online resources to help address a variety of workplace issues and concerns.

A Manager Support Consultant can:

- Provide guidance on how to communicate a performance issue to an employee
- Explain how to offer assistance to an employee in the most productive and appropriate manner
- Discuss options for dealing with a difficult situation
- Assess challenging situations and determine the appropriate course of action based on the issue and on departmental policies
- Offer suggestions on how to manage a supervisor referral to the EAP*

*Supervisor referrals are not disciplinary measures and do not replace standard policies and procedures.
